

REFCON MAKES A CASE FOR PRESERVING THE PLANET™

Refcon, the leading environmentally responsible maker of high-end refrigerated display fixtures and counters, is now increasingly incorporating Forest Stewardship Council-certified woods in its products to meet growing demand from consultants and operators.

As the long-time preferred manufacturer of made-to-order produce, bakery, deli and other cold-product display fixtures -- as well as custom counter units -- Refcon has also now moved to the head of its category in the fabrication of planet-preserving food presentation equipment for specifiers and end-users.

In fact, Refcon is now the exclusive large-scale producer of refrigerated fixtures and counters containing only woods certified by the global Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) and no environmentally destructive glues or solvents.

This means that the wood products Refcon uses for “green” cabinet structures, veneers, millwork, counter surfaces and even entire units – such as those pictured here -- are warranted to have remained within the FSC’s “chain of custody” at all times, making the company the only large-scale cold-case manufacturer to comply consistently with these standards.

Refcon is proud to undertake the extra work and expense of separately storing and specially handling FSC-certified woods, and to opening our facilities to periodic inspections by personnel from the Forest Stewardship Council-approved Scientific Certification Systems.

This commitment reflects Refcon's support of renewable practices throughout the foodservice industry. It also demonstrates our ability to manufacture precisely the sorts of products our business partners require in an environmentally friendly manner. If this sounds like the sort of company you want to do business with, remember –
